

Phase plane: rate of change against the value it started from, shaded by the 50, 80 and 95% predictiv regions. A linear model implies a band sloping down at the drift rate, the same everywhere. Observed points that curve, or that flatten at the extremes while the regions do not, indicate nonlinear dynamics. See ctPhasePortrait() for the model side of this on its own.